

WORRY PARTY

'Souvenirs' - The EP

Worry Party are an ambient indie four piece, with their roots in the North of England. They create texture and movement from subtle guitars and keys - sometimes jarringly set against bold percussion and home-made samples.

Release Date: Friday 20th March 2020

Available for download & streaming on all major digital platforms

"SOUVENIRS is a collection of songs about self-discovery; both through how we see ourselves, and how we are reflected in others. Lead single 'Traveller' ponders whether or not repeating cycles of behaviour are destructive, or whether they simply reinforce our fundamental nature and should therefore be regarded as one of the few genuine guideposts on this journey. The follow up, 'Beach Blood', laments the idea of home, and if our uniqueness prevents us from ever feeling truly rested. The final half of the EP focuses on relationships, with 'True North' asking why consensually toxic relationships exist and what they teach us about ourselves, and 'Waves' suggesting that retaining the minutiae of daily routines indicates the existence of deeper connections than perhaps we'd first realised, and that we should always afford our company the attention they deserve before we lose those seemingly forgettable routines forever.

Initially only a passion project never intended for release, SOUVENIRS was written and recorded over the course of six months in Steven's spare room. Following positive feedback from peers, the EP was re-imagined, spearheading a new direction for Worry Party; one that moved away from ambient bedroom jams and small acoustic shows, and towards regular full band gigs with live electronics and full instrumentation.

'Traveller' will be released as part of SOUVENIRS on March 20th, and the EP will also include instrumentals, and remixes from local producers."

Band Members: Steven Chell - vocals, guitar, keys / Chris Old - guitar / Laura Hilton - vocal / Glenn Whitfield - bass

Influences: Bright Eyes, Death Cab for Cutie, Yeah Yeah Yeahs, Four Tet, Modest Mouse, ARCA

www.decentmusicpr.com/worryparty